State Debt Continues to Increase—Now More Than $3,000,000!

Guthrie, Okla., July 14.—Governor Haskell and his democratic press bureau are busy just now trying to explain away the large state debt, which the democrats have piled up during a little over two and one-half years of democratic administration.

The governor attempts to deceive his hearers by stating that the cause of the debt was the large number of outstanding warrants, which were inherited from Oklahoma Territory. As usual the governor's figures are based upon fiction—not facts—and are easily disproved by the records.

The facts are that the State received from the Territorial Treasurer the sum of $932,584.88 cash, and in addition to this, $49,311.12 was paid into the state treasury from the several county treasurers of Oklahoma Territory, the sum being back taxes. This makes a total of $981,896.00 received by the state treasurer.

The total amount of outstanding territorial warrants of every description, including all interests paid on same up to the time of their redemption was $903,042.46. This makes $78,853.54 in the hands of the state treasurer from territorial funds after he had redeemed all warrants.

In addition to this, an examination of the records of the public land department shows that L. D. Marr, secretary of that department, received the sum of $333,825.78, which, added to the $78,853.54, makes a total of $412,479.72 cash received by the State from the Territory in excess of all territorial liabilities.

In spite of this large cash asset received from the Territory on November 30, 1900, there was outstanding $1,490,000.00 in state bonds, and $1,615,552.61 in state warrants, making a total gross indebtedness of $3,075,552.61.

There was at this time in the state treasury, however, the sum of $1,066,420.77, and deducting this from the gross indebtedness leaves a net state debt of $2,009,131.84 on November 30, 1900.

These are official figures from the official records and can not be disputed unless records are falsified, and this, too, under a constitution which says that the state debt shall not at any time exceed $400,000.00.

Since November 30, 1900, $750,000.00 of the public building warrants have been issued, and, in addition, a large amount of other warrants to meet current expenses and the extraordinary expenses and appropriation of the special session of the legislature sufficient to make the debt at this time undoubtedly in excess of $3,000,000.00.

Success Achieved by the Young.

When the statement is made that this one or that one is too young for responsible positions or where older heads are oftentimes seen, refer to the following list of noted men and see at what age they accomplished their successes. If the man is capable, let his age take care of itself. Brains, not age, count.

Alexander the Great became commander of the Macedonian forces at the age of 20. By the time he was 30 he had conquered almost the entire civilized world.

Hannibal, one of the world's greatest military commanders, was placed in command of the Carthaginian forces at the age of 28. When he was 29 he led an expedition across the Alps Mountains, which was considered almost miraculous.

Cicero entered public life at 18, and was elected ruler of Sicily at the age of 30.

Columbus conceived that the world was round when he was about 30. Martin Luther and John Calvin were each about 27 years old when they began their careers as reformers.

Oliver Cromwell was 27 years old when he was elected a member of the House of Commons.

Napoleon was 24 years old when he was made a lieutenant Colonel of the Artillery.

Washington was 21 when he was sent by the Governor of Virginia to carry important letters to the French Commander, who was occupying forts along the English frontier.

Bryant was 18 when he wrote his best poem, "Thanatopsis."

Whitney was 28 when he invented the cotton gin.

Lowell was about 27 when he wrote "The Vision of Sir Launfal."

Franklin arrived in Philadelphia at the age of 17 with $125. By the time he was 23 he had saved enough to establish a newspaper.

Dumont made the first successful airship when he was 28.

McCormick was 22 when he invented the reaping machine.

Longfellow began to write at the age of 19, and was appointed to the Chair of Modern Languages when he was 29.

McKinley was elected Prosecuting Attorney of Stark county, Ohio, in 1869, when he was only 26 years old.

Roosevelt, our youngest President, was elected to the New York Legislature at the age of 23.

Marconi was 24 years of age when he invented wireless telegraphy.

Edison began his career as an inventor at the age of 16 years.

What Prohibition Means.

One of the wealthiest brewers in the United States, a man, by the way, who is somewhat noted for his public benefactions in the way of endowments for schools and his charities, before embarking for Europe a few days ago, allowed himself to be quoted as saying that the meanest thing in the world was prohibition. He continued: "Prohibition, if given full sway, would ruin the world. It is a breeder of hypocrisy and a destroyer of moderation. We want moderation in all things—in drinking, eating and smoking. We want high license and regulation of saloons."

It would seem that this defender of the saloon has concluded his argument without sufficiently and definitely presenting his case. Why do we want the saloon at all? In using the pronoun "we" does the millionaire brewer mean to include all the people of the United States, or only the brewers and saloon men? He says "we" want high license and regulation of saloons. This is concluding that saloons are wanted.

But who wants them? Have the wives, the mothers and the children asked the gentleman to speak for them? We have watched the trend for several years and have heard no such demand for the perpetuation of the saloon in any form. We do not think a close investigation of the matter will show that the tribute of millions of dollars which has made possible the benefactions of this brewer prince has benefited the humbler homes of the masses from which it has been drawn. Let us hear all the testimony. No fair-minded public will render a decision simply on the theory advanced by the special pleader.

Prohibition, he says, is a breeder of hypocrisy and a destroyer of moderation. He takes occasion to remark that not all people are hypocrites, probably all are not prohibitionists. But it destroys moderation. Moderation in what? Drinking, no doubt. Then we are to accept the ability of men and women to drink just enough intoxicating liquor and never too much, as the gauge by which their lives are to be judged. This is to be the standard of success or failure. But perhaps we have erred. Possibly it has nothing to do with one's ability to drink without becoming dissolute or depraved. It may be that prohibition tends to destroy moderation in crime. Now moderation is not prohibition. The moderate drinker is not the abstainer from any cause. Moderation in crime, therefore, is not the destruction of crime but its moderate commission. And the same rule applied to crime is equally applicable to poverty, suffering, insanity, and broken family ties. Perhaps he means all these.

Because prohibition is the destroyer of moderation in all these things, the philanthropic brewer brands it "the meanest thing in the world." How far beyond himself and the great institution built up by him does he look? To him, no doubt, prohibition does seem a terrible spectre. It would "mean" the confiscation of a few of his millions; but on the other hand it might "mean" the restoration of a few million homes and the reclamation of hundreds of thousands of human derelicts. It might "mean," also, the emptying of prisons and the lowering of the tax rate. It would "mean" these things, and more, perhaps it is the meanest thing in the world.—National Daily.
